3 Promoted At Salem China

Greenwood Named As Plant Manager

Three men are involved in promotions announced today at the Salem China Co. by Harrison Keller, president of the pottery. J. W. Greenwood has been appointed to a newly-created position of plant manager. He has been superintendent.

John Roberts has been promoted from assistant superintendent to production manager, filling the vacancy left by the death of Faber Fairbanks Feb. 14.

William H. Stark advances from the position of maintenance foreman to "A" Division manager.

Greenwood joined the staff of the Salem China Co. in 1945, coming here from East Liverpool where he was with the Hall China Co. A graduate of East Liverpool High School, he is a member of Salem Golf Club, Perry Lodge, First Presbyterian Church and is active in the PTA and Girl Scout programs.

He and his wife, Ruth, who reside at 1449 E. State St., have a daughter, Ruth, and one grandson.

Roberts, who resides at 1293 Carole Drive with his wife, Mary Lou, and four children, is president of the Reilly School PTA and is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a graduate of Wellsville High School and previously worked for the Hall China Co. in East Liverpool.

Stark, who is a former Salem city councilman and president of Council, resides at 1822 Cleveland St. He and his wife, Dolores, have four children, two sons being in the army.

He is a member of the First Baptist Church and Boosters Club and is a graduate of Wellsville High School. Previous to joining the Salem China Co., he was employed by the Federal Works Agency.

Weekend Road Toll Drops to Near Low

By The Associated Press
Despite one of the worst winter storms in years, Ohio's weekend traffic death toll dropped to one of the lowest levels in memory.

Between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, four deaths resulting from traffic accidents were reported to The Associated Press. Besides these, three miscellaneous mishaps were reported, making the over-all toll of seven among the lowest ever recorded. Only three weeks ago the highway death count nearly reached an all-time high when 30 persons perished on the roads and the over-all toll climbed to 42.

PROBE MINOR CRASH

LISBON — Village police investigated a minor two-car accident Sunday at 5:30 p.m.

Police said Merle Gotthardt, 38, of New Waterford, was driving south on N. Market St., and was struck by a car driven by Earl Miller, 58, of East Liverpool, who pulled away from the curb.

Rejects Nikita's Geneva Proposal

President Hoping For June Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has told Soviet Premier Khrushchev he hopes developments at the Geneva disarmament conference can lead to a summit meeting by June 1.

The United States and its Western allies reportedly are considering short-range disarmament proposals which they hope the Soviet Union might accept quickly at Geneva, thus providing a basis for a summit meeting in May. Included is a proposal banning transfer of nuclear weapons to other nations.

Kennedy's views were expressed Sunday in a 1,000-word note to Khrushchev rejecting the premier's second proposal that heads of the 18 nations involved open the Geneva talks March 14. The President, who wants the talks opened at the foreign ministers level, told Khrushchev that to have a heads of government meeting at the beginning of the conference "would be to begin with the wrong end of the problem."

Kennedy added the hope that "developments in the conference and internationally would make it useful to arrange for the personal participation of the heads of government before June 1."

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who conferred with Kennedy by telephone Friday when the President was drafting

Steel Talks Not Going As Expected

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP)—Labor union sources reported today that steel negotiations in Pittsburgh have not progressed nearly so well as it is generally believed.

The basic terms for a new labor contract simply have not yet been determined, according to informed reports circulated here at the winter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council. The reports suggest that the friendly atmosphere of the talks has been no more than just that.

Both sides have been aiming informally at a March 1 settlement in response to President Kennedy's repeated urging for an early agreement to replace contracts expiring June 30. It is not now expected the March 1 target will be realized.

Over the weekend, the AFL-CIO council expressed alarm at the continuing high rate of unemployment and called for a combined drive for higher wages, a federal income tax cut and increased public works spending to expand purchasing power and create more jobs.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said in a locally televised interview that organized labor wanted to see the administration avoid "the coming Kennedy recession in the next six months or so."

The AFL-CIO leader said economic recovery has struck a snag and that interest rates again have started climbing. He advocated a flexible work week system that would reduce normal work hours below 40 a week in times of heavy unemployment but return them to the 40-hour level during full employment periods.

his reply to Khrushchev, also rejected the Soviet premier's bid for March summit talks. British officials said that Macmillan's reply, like Kennedy's, repeated the view that the conference should open at the foreign ministers level.

Kennedy firmly rejected Khrushchev's contention that possible U. S. resumption of atmospheric nuclear testing would be an aggressive act. He said it was strange that the Soviet Union, which broke the truce on atmospheric testing last fall, should now accuse the United States of aggression.

The Geneva conference is being held at the request of the United Nations. The 18 nations include five Western allies, five from the Communist bloc, and eight avowedly neutral countries. Representatives of the five Western nations — the United

Woman Hurt In Two-Car Mishap Here

Peggy J. Whinnery, 28, of 135 W. 7th St., was treated at the Central Clinic for injuries received at 1:20 p.m. Sunday when the car in which she was riding was struck by another auto that failed to stop for a red traffic light at the intersection of S. Broadway and E. Pershing St., police report.

Mrs. Whinnery suffered a bump on the head, a whiplash injury to the neck and contusions of the scalp.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Richard M. Whinnery, 30, a Salem policeman, who was off duty at the time of the accident. He was driving his own car, a 1961 Falcon which received considerable damage to the front.

Police said the Whinnerys were traveling east on Pershing when their car was struck by an auto driven by Leroy E. Mathey, 27, of the Metzger Hotel, who was going south on Broadway. Mathey was cited for failure to yield the right of way and was to receive a hearing before Mayor Dean B. Crammer this afternoon.

No one was hurt in two accidents Saturday. Both mishaps were blamed on icy streets.

A car driven by Georgia M. Lightner, 41, of West Point, skidded into the rear of a car driven by John C. Cummings, 35, of East Cleveland, who had stopped in a line of traffic on S. Lincoln Ave., just south of Columbia St. The mishap occurred at 12:15 p.m.

Jean S. Wright, 28, of 518 Woodland Ave., reported to police that her station wagon skidded on ice and struck a fire hydrant on S. Lincoln Ave., south of Perry St., shortly after midnight Friday. Damage to the station wagon was estimated at $275. The fire hydrant also was damaged.

Bob Calls For New Approach On New Guinea

Says Netherlands, Indonesia Deal With Problem Emotionally

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy called today for both Indonesia and the Netherlands to take a "factual and rational" approach to the explosive issue of West New Guinea.

The U.S. attorney general, nearing the end of a world tour during which he has visited both the countries contending for the Southeast Asia island territory, clearly implied he found both the Dutch and Indonesians approached the issue emotionally rather than factually.

"If a factual approach could be made and a genuine effort made by rational people" from both sides, he said, it might be possible to get both governments together at the conference table to work out a peaceful solution.

Kennedy refused to say whether he had made any suggestions to Foreign Minister Joseph M. A. H. Luns during a 70-minute conference they held today. Luns said they had a "good and friendly exchange" but that it was not conclusive since Kennedy is only on a fact-finding tour.

Aides to Kennedy said he brought no message from the Indonesian government to the Dutch.

Kennedy said his mission in both the Netherlands and Indonesia had been to hear the peoples' views and their suggestions for a peaceful solution. Asked whether he had made any suggestion to Indonesian President Sukarno, he replied that the United States is a friend of both Indonesia and the Netherlands.

"We, along with many other countries, are making efforts for a peaceful solution and to get the two parties sitting down to come to a settlement," he said.

Kennedy arrived Sunday from Bonn for a busy round of calls before flying this afternoon to Paris, his last stop before flying home.

Soon after his arrival he and his wife had tea with Queen Juliana at Huis Ten Bosch, her palace on the outskirts of The Hague. Sunday night the attorney general dined with top government officials and West New Guinea was the chief topic of after dinner discussion.

Mrs. Kennedy made a sightseeing tour of The Hague, Delft and Amsterdam.

Before leaving West Germany, the Kennedys drove the 15 miles from Bonn to Cologne to attend Mass at the famous Cologne Cathedral.

In a parting shot at the East German Communist regime, he said in a speech taped for broadcast to East Germany that on his world tour he had gained the impression that East German party chief Walter Ulbricht has "no prestige and no position in any place in the world in which I have been."

Midwest Blasted By Snow, Sleet Storms

By The Associated Press

Another snow and sleet storm hit sections of the Midwest today, dumping another blanket of white across the snow-covered midlands.

Wet weather also was in prospect for most of the eastern half of the nation, with snow and rain in the Northeast and rain in other areas outside the Midwest snow belt.

Arctic air from Canada spread into Montana, Wyoming and North Dakota. In Montana, temperatures fell to 26 below zero in Butte, -20 in Drummond, -19 in Lewiston and -17 in Cut Bank.

The snow belt extended from Lake Michigan and Lake Superior into Kansas, Nebraska and southern South Dakota. Heavy snow fell in Iowa, with six inches reported in a six-hour period in Des Moines, making a total of 15 inches on the ground. In Waterloo, Iowa, the seven-inch fall increased the total on the ground to 17 inches.

Four to eight inches of snow was indicated in northwest Wisconsin and two to four inches in the northern half of Illinois.

Snow also spread across areas in the central Rockies, Utah, Nevada and northern Arizona. Showers and thundershowers

Top Court Rules On Travel Issue

Says States Can't Require Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that no state may require racial segregation of transportation facilities.

Its ruling applies both to intrastate facilities, that is wholly within the state, as well as interstate, or travel across state lines.

The court said the question had been settled by its previous decisions and is no longer open to litigation.

It directed the U.S. District Court in Mississippi to rule on protests by Freedom Riders who were arrested in Jackson, Miss. The Supreme Court told the District Court to dispose of the case expeditiously, "in the light of this (today's) opinion."

Chief Justice Earl Warren read the court's unsigned opinion which said:

"We have settled beyond question that no state may require racial segregation of interstate or intrastate transportation facilities. The question is no longer open; it is foreclosed as a litigable issue."

The case went to the Supreme Court on an appeal by the riders

Algerian Approval Of Treaty Likely

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Armored cars and riot troops swarmed into the heart of Algiers today but European terrorists killed 10 more Moslems, virtually under the eyes of police.

The Algerian nationalist rebels' parliament was meeting in Tripoli and was expected to approve a cease-fire with the French before the day is over.

This was expected to touch off another eruption of violence by the secret army, enemy of both the rebels and the French government.

In its campaign to block Algeria independence and keep the territory French, the secret army Sunday staged one of its most daring attacks to date—a bazooka raid on a French military police barracks in the outskirts. At least 10 persons were reported slain and gasoline storage tanks were set afire.

Menon Leads Parliament Race In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon today forged into an early lead in a bitterly contested parliamentary race that put Prime Minister Nehru's prestige at stake.

First returns gave Menon 7,129 votes to 5,095 for J. B. Kripalani, an old disciple of Gandhi backed by a coalition which charged Nehru's left-leaning policy confidante with being pro-Communist. The counting will not be completed until Wednesday.

Nehru took the stump for his aide, running in a north Bombay district, and argued his defeat would mean a setback for the ruling Congress party's development program.

The Congress party was off to a running start toward retaining overwhelming control of the National Parliament but there were indications its holdings in the 13 state legislatures might be weakened somewhat.

Although Nehru's party took 322 of the first 460 state assembly seats decided, this was a slight drop from the 1957 elections. The Congress party, although favored to win control of most and perhaps all of the state legislatures, had lost 45 seats it formerly held and picked up only 20 new ones. There are 2,930 state legislature seats in all.

Loss of assembly seats was not seen as any repudiation of Nehru, Indian voter in previous elections have generally supported him in the parliamentary elections and voted on local issues in the assembly races.

Nehru's party was returned to power in Madras state, winning 104 seats of the first 140 decided in the 206-member legislature.

The Congress party also captured the first three parliamentary seats counted and also picked up three other seats in the 507-member lower house in districts where its candidates were not opposed.

Half the nation's 210 million voters were estimated to have cast ballots in the 16 days of voting, the biggest election in the non-Communist world.

Pouring Rain Mars Opening Ceremonies

Marine Spaceman To Address Houses Of Congress Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. flew into Washington today, escorted by President Kennedy, for a day of high honors in the nation's capital.

The President's big jet plane, flying from West Palm Beach, Fla., with Glenn and his whole family aboard, landed at Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland at 11:16 a.m. EST.

The landing was made under low ceiling short visibility conditions in a pouring rain.

The weather drove the opening ceremonies, planned for outdoors, into the shelter of a big hangar.

As the rain kept pouring down, plans for a helicopter flight to carry the astronaut from the air base were canceled and a motorcade was arranged.

The presidential limousine and a fleet of other cars wheeled into the hangar 15 minutes before the expected touchdown of the President's jet.

Already on hand were Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Castor, Mrs. Glenn's parents, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoseney of Pittsburgh.

They were flown from Florida, where they had spent the weekend with the Glenns, on an Air Force jet identical to the President's.

They took their place in the area of the hangar floor reserved for "distinguished guests."

It was just as wet downtown but the harder ones gathered early along the route of the parade from the White House to the Capitol. A few dozen were on hand behind the ropes at the Capitol Plaza two hours before Glenn was due there to appear at a joint meeting of Congress.

A cab driver on Connecticut Avenue told a reporter en route to the White House:

"It seems like weather plays an important part in that feller (Glenn) doesn't it?"

"I have seen a lot of women with children around the parade route so far. I wouldn't bring my kids down on a day like this."

Weather had been the cause of Macmillan Ready for Disarmament Parley

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told Soviet Premier Khrushchev today he is "very ready" to join a summit parley on disarmament if negotiations make progress or run into deadlock.

In a mildly worded note, Macmillan expressed the view that "either of these situations may arise fairly soon."

The prime minister lined up with President Kennedy in rejecting Khrushchev's proposal that heads of government personally should give a flying start to the 18-power conference opening March 14 in Geneva under United Nations sponsorship.

The British leader said he still felt, however, that the Geneva negotiations should begin at foreign ministers level as he and Kennedy have suggested.

Macmillan's letter was delivered in Moscow today. Seen together with Kennedy's reply it emphasized that British-American differences with Khrushchev on summitry bow down to the question of timing.

The prime minister's message, courteously worded, read like an appeal to the Soviet premier's logic.

Scorecard Needed For Russian Maneuvers

By JAMES MARLOW

Associate Press News Analyst. WASHINGTON (AP)—Some of it is tricky, some of it is propaganda, and some of it seems to make no sense.

You need a scorecard to follow the Russian maneuvers — the soft and tough — on disarmament, nuclear testing, summitry, Berlin and the exchange of spies and relatives.

Premier Khrushchev's latest call for a summit, and President Kennedy's rejection of it Sunday, at least for the time being, is only the most recent in a mish-mash of events.

If a whole series of friendly gestures had been followed by harsh ones, they could be listed separately and an obvious conclusion drawn: That Khrushchev had switched his tactics.

But they're not separate. They're interwoven. They're so mixed up they sometimes make Khrushchev look mixed up. Take this past year.

Shortly after Kennedy took office in 1961 Khrushchev released two American RB47 bomber pilots shot down off the Russian coast in 1960. That was a friendly start.

It remained pleasant, except for some jarring minor episodes, until June 1961, when Kennedy and Khrushchev met in Vienna and the Russian made his demands on Berlin. Then for months he built a crisis.

He climaxed it Aug. 13 by setting up a wall between East and West Berlin. Then he let the crisis dwindle, as if he felt he had established unchallenged the principle of the separation of East and West Germany.

He began a crisis elsewhere. For three years the United States, Britain and Russia had stopped nuclear testing while they talked in Geneva about agreeing to a permanent ban on it.

Then on Sept. 1, with only one day's warning, while the talks were still going on, Russia resumed testing. No nation can test suddenly. So Russia had been planning this for months.

In October, Khrushchev had a mean split with his Red Chinese allies. Whether this had something to do with what followed for months is not known, but from October until this year Khrushchev remained almost silent.

In the meantime, as a friendly gesture, in November he let his son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, editor of Izvestia, interview Kennedy and permitted the interview to be published in Moscow.

Things looked calm but not for long. Events picked up after the first of the year.

Despite the Russian resumption of testing the test-ban talks continued in Geneva. For a long time Russia had demanded that these talks be merged with talks on disarmament in general.

(Eighteen nations are opening talks March 14 in Geneva on general disarmament.)

In January the United States and Britain agreed to the Russian demand to merge the talks. Then suddenly the Russians switched; wanted no part of it. The nuclear test-ban talks, extending over years and 353 sessions, broke up Jan. 29.

Just as this was happening, Khrushchev sent his son-in-law back to Washington to lunch with Kennedy, and Moscow invited the President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, to Russia. He declined.

On Feb. 7 Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan suggested the big powers could show they meant business at the March 14 disarmament talks by sending their foreign ministers there.

Three days later, although it had been long in the works, Khrushchev released Francis Gary Powers, the captured U2 spy plane pilot, in exchange for Col. Rudolf I. Abel, the Soviet spy captured here. Moscow itself called this a friendly Russian gesture.

The next day, Feb. 11, Khrushchev outdid Kennedy and Macmillan on how to start off the disarmament talks next month. He said they should begin with a summit meeting.

Kennedy and Macmillan turned this down, suggesting there could be a summit meeting if East and West representatives at Geneva made some progress.

Last week, in hurt tones, Khrushchev fired back another bid for a summit. Sunday Kennedy released his reply to this, saying what he had said before, but still leaving the door open to a summit.

Meanwhile things were getting mixed up again. Russian fighters had started annoying Western planes using the Berlin air corridors. And, once again, Russia switched and agreed to the idea of merging test-ban talks with disarmament talks.

But Russia made all the talks look a little ridiculous by stating beforehand that they wouldn't agree to an inspection system before there was disarmament, which is just the opposite of what the United States says it wants.

False Ideas About Mortgage House Buyer Sometimes Has

A PERSON getting ready to buy a house for the first time often has a lot of erroneous ideas about a mortgage. Realtors, banks, savings and loan associations and other lending agencies are constantly amazed at the fallacies that have crept into the thinking of many potential first-time home purchasers.

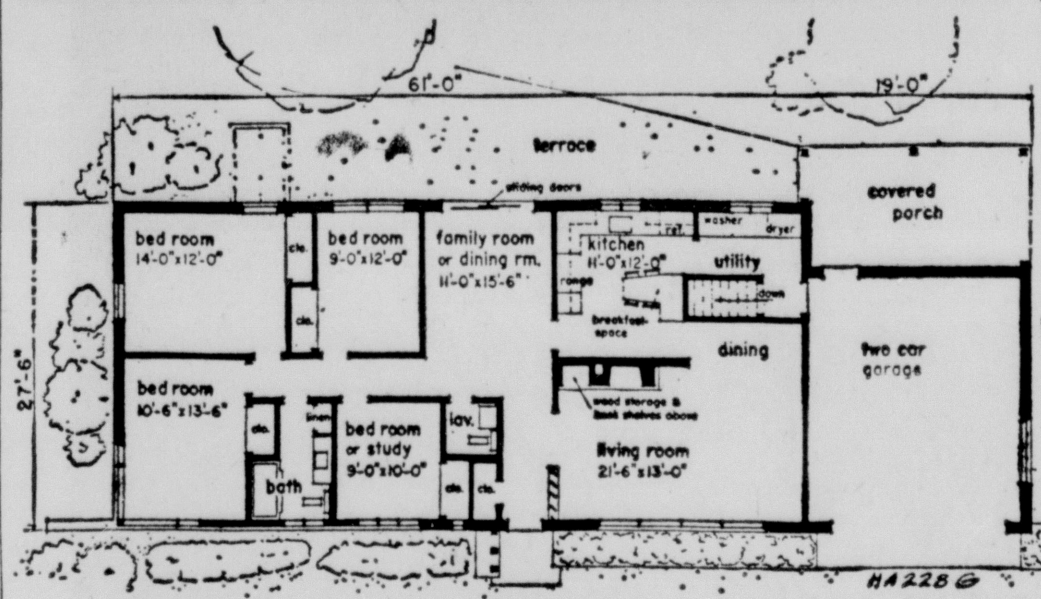

Even with all these misconceptions, little damage would be done if every buyer took the time and trouble to read and understand all the papers he signs. But it is a rarity when somebody reads every word of every document placed before him and then—and only then—attaches his signature. The general feeling seems to be: "These are regulation forms and papers which everybody signs in order to get a mortgage. Why shouldn't I sign them, too?"

Why, indeed? Yet there are countless numbers of persons every year who discover some facts about their mortgages of which they were unaware. Let there be any misunderstanding, it's not the fault of the banks or agencies which are lending the money. It's simply that there are different kinds of mortgages—and it's up to you to get the type best suited for your needs. You can't blame the lender any more than you can blame the builder because you paid extra for a seven-room house when you really needed one with only five rooms.

When you're laying out thousands of dollars to buy a house, it is false economy not to use the services of a lawyer for a very small percentage of the total cost of the purchase. Not only will he take care of all the details for you, but will protect your interests to see that you get what you want. The important thing, however, is to know what you want so that your wishes can be carried out. If, for instance, you have some idea that you might be able to pay off your mortgage before its normal expiration time, be sure you get the kind of mortgage which permits extra payments of principal. Some mortgages do not.

And how do you find out all this information about mortgages? Contact your bank, a savings and loan association, the Veterans Administration or the Federal Housing Administration before you select your house and become so intrigued with the idea of living in it that you'll sign anything just so you can move in.

FOUR-BEDROOM RANCH—This 1,677-square-foot house has brick veneer on wood stud construction, asphalt shingle roof and a full basement. The basement, of course, can be eliminated, making more space in the utility room. Interior features are a bath in the bedroom wing, half bath in the living area and living room fireplace. Modern Housewives Discover Don't Forget Way to Lick Servant Problem To Insulate Small Places

MODERN HOUSEWIVES have found a way to lick the servant problem.

They now may have a staff of cook, house-cleaner, baby-sitter, butler and secretary—all worked by pushbuttons.

The modern stove does the cooking—turns on at a prearranged signal, turns itself off when the food is done, while the lady of the house is out playing bridge.

New automatic dishwashers and vacuum cleaners need only slight human direction, and new TV and intercom gadgets enable Mom to watch the nursery at a distance.

Newest in the electronic household staff are the electronic butler and secretary.

The butler answers the doorbell by remote control, inquires the caller's business and gives the answer. It's a new gadget by which the doorbell is hooked up to the telephones in the house, so that if Mom happens to be in the tub when the bell rings she can simply pick up a phone and answer it. If it's a salesman, a microphone OUTSIDE the door can say—"We don't need any today."

If she goes shopping for the day, the lady of the house may leave her electronic secretary in charge, to answer the telephone, give and take messages, all by means of a recording device. Mom needn't even come back home to get her messages. All she has to do is call her number from any phone, hold a small oscillator near the mouthpiece, and find out what time Dad will be home from work or when she's supposed to pick up the children.

Automation can even save her the trouble of dialing numbers any more. There is a new index which may be attached to the phone, listing as many as 800 names and numbers, when she wants to talk to a friend, either in the neighborhood or 1,000 miles away, all she has to do is turn the index to the right name, push a button and talk.

What next? "Well," says Donald C. Power, whose company is responsible for many electronic marvels, "the day is not far off when the United States will be linked by a nationwide electronic telephone system, directed by electronic brains."

Now maybe somebody will invent an electronic parent to keep the children in line.

Warning to do-it-yourselfers: The fact that a building material is easy to apply is not a license to do a careless job.

This is particularly true of insulation. Because insulation is later hidden by other materials, it's tempting to skip small spaces. But when this is done, the effectiveness of the insulation is reduced greatly, far out of proportion to the seeming neglect.

Narrow stud and joist spaces require that mineral wool batts and blankets be cut to fit. The photos at the right show how:

1. Measure the space to be filled.
2. Mark off the width on the back of the batt, the side without flanges on the paper coverings. Cut the batt a little over-size so that it will fit snugly.
3. Cut with a straight-edge and a sharp knife. Do not cut through the thicker, vapor-barrier cover ing underneath.
4. Cut the vapor barrier about 1 inch away from the mineral wool proper in order to leave a stapling flange. Cut flanges at ends for stapling at top and bottom wall plates.
5. Staple insulation in place. Vapor-barrier flange overlaps flange of batt in adjoining stud space.

It Pays To Know Something About Basic Types of Nails

Screws may be stronger and glue neater, but nails provide a faster and cheaper method of fastening pieces of wood together.

At the beginning, an assortment of nails—many dealers carry packaged mixtures—will be all you need for minor repair jobs.

But if you plan to tackle anything major, you will need special nails. There are hundreds of types of nails but perhaps less than a dozen that you are likely to encounter.

Four Types
For most needs, one or more of four types will do — common, box, casing and finishing nails. Common and box nails both have flat heads but common nails are thicker.

Casing and finishing nails have very small heads which can be pounded into wood so that they won't show. Casing nails are about the thickness of box nails, finishing nails are thinnest of all.

Penny's Worth
A designation that may confuse you is the term "penny" in relation to size of nails—such as 4-penny or 10-penny nails. And when the description is written out it may be even more confusing since the letter d is used. This "d" is the English sign for pence.

Smallest nail under the penny system is 2d which is one-inch long. Nails shorter than that are called brads or tacks and are measured in fractions of an inch. Nails longer than six inches are called spikes.

Handy List
Length increases 1/4-inch with each penny increase from 2 to 10. Beyond that point, penny designation increases faster in length. The following listing will serve as an aid when buying nails: 2d—1-inch; 3d—1 1/4-inch; 4d—1 1/2-inch; 5d—1 3/4-inch; 6d—2-inch; 7d—2 1/2-inch; 8d—2 3/4-inch; 9d—3-inch; 10d—3 1/2-inch; 12d—3 3/4-inch; 16d—3 1/2-inch; 20d—4-inch; 30d—4 1/2-inch; 40d—5-inch; 50d—5 1/2-inch; 60d—6-inch.

Use Long One
Use the longest nail that will not go all the way through and stick out the other side. If you are nailing a thick board and a thin one together, use a nail three times the thickness of the thinner board.

In general, the larger nail is the strongest. Use the largest nail you can without splitting the wood. Where appearance rather than strength is important, use finishing nails and drive the head below the surface with a nail set.

Drill Pilot
When driving a nail in hard wood there is danger of splitting the wood. Drill a pilot hole first, slightly smaller than the diameter of the nail and about a third of its length.

Where extreme holding power is needed ask your dealer about some of the special purpose nails that have ridges or spirals along their shanks for greater holding power. If you use these remember that they have a greater tendency to split wood.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: There are two coats of paint over the wallpaper in our bedroom. We want to remove the paper. We tried a steamer, but could not get the steam to penetrate the paper until we first used rough sandpaper on an electric buffer. We had rented the steamer and it took us six hours to do one side of the wall. Is there any easier way we can get off the wallpaper?

ANSWER: When wallpaper has more than one coat—it is always a nuisance to remove the paper. There simply is no easy way of doing it. The paint creates a seal and, until you pierce the seal, there is just no way to attack the adhesive that holds the paper to the wall.

While a steamer often is recommended, some persons maintain that it is better to soak the paper again and again with a cloth sopping with warm water or one of the commercial wallpaper removers. When this has been done, the scraping, with a putty knife or similar tool, should not be delayed too long, otherwise the paper will dry and stiffen up again.

But it can't be done instantly. Either, as some time must be allowed for the water to soak in. Generally, from three to five minutes is about right, but individual cases vary. This is something you'll have to judge yourself as you go along. Since you are going to soak the paper and not just wet it, there'll be a lot of water dripping down the wall, so you'd better see that the floor is protected.

Right Roofing Withstands Big Winds

Severe hurricanes usually leave a path of damage so wide and great that there's little room for mention in news bulletins of homes in the path of the big blow.

Yet these "minor" damages things like fallen shade trees and houses stripped of roofing—often exert extreme hardships on homeowners who are victims.

A wind-shattered shade tree, for example, takes years to replace. Its loss may sharply reduce the value of the property, and can mean many long, uncomfortable summers if the tree shaded the house.

Roofing material can be replaced, but its loss in a windstorm may mean disaster to a home. Most windstorms are accompanied or followed by deluging rains. When roofing is torn away by high winds, these rains pour into the house, saturating plaster, getting into insulation and wiring circuits, and soaking clothing, furniture, and other possessions.

Unless a homeowner has special windstorm insurance, this kind of damage can deal his family a severe financial setback. So-called "extended coverage" policies often fail to cover water damage.

The best insurance against roof and rain damage in a windstorm is to prevent it with a wind-resistant roof of self-sealing or interlocking asphalt shingles or by cementing down conventional shingle tabs. Low in applied cost, a wind-resistant roof can be applied by nearly any roofing contractor and is available in a wide range of colors.

Wind-resistant asphalt roofs have been known to remain securely in place after high winds have ripped entire roof assemblies away.

Luminescent Safety Marking Comes In Spray-On Can

So new that it's started to glow in only a few markets across the country, is a luminescent, paint-like product that can be sprayed onto any suitable surface.

It's just one member of a new family of safety marking materials designed for home or industrial use.

Among other items in the line: a tape, similar to an adhesive tape, that can be used to mark danger areas with bands of glowing phosphorescence; a tumbler for bathroom or sickroom use that glows in the dark; ready-printed signs for posting at danger spots.

Signs would seem to be most suited for industrial or institutional use.

THE PHOSPHORESCENT ingredient that gives the material its ability to glow in the dark is nontoxic and nonradioactive. So says the manufacturer.

The spray-on product is applied exactly as you would use any spray paint or other liquid packaged in aerosol-pressured spray cans.

For best results, the manufacturer suggests that the spray be used on a white, or nearly white background. For that reason, a coat of white paint should be applied over darker surfaces to be sprayed and allowed to dry thoroughly before the luminescent spray is used.

Three of four coats of the material are applied to the surface to be marked, and each coat should be allowed to dry before the succeeding coat is added.

AS LITTLE AS FIVE or 10 minutes exposure to sunlight or artificial light is sufficient to make the material glow for hours in dark areas, it is said.

Uses for the product include: spray for risers of basement steps, around fuse box, light switches, on low-overhanging beams, pipes and projections in basements, for spotting near valves and shut-offs on piping, meters and other home controls.

For the latter use, it is suggested that the spray be applied to a cardboard or panel that is hung near the piping; sweating of pipes might impair its efficiency.

MASK AREAS THAT you plan to spray. Like any sprayed material, it will spatter surrounding surfaces unless you take this precaution.

The built-in party possibilities of this product would seem to be numerous. Halloween decorations are a "natural" use for it in effecting ghostly displays.

Christmas ornaments made of cardboard or old, battered ornaments could be sprayed with the material. When lights of the tree are out, there will still be a softly glowing beauty to the tree.

Caution: the paint is opaque. Don't spray ornaments with it unless you want to wipe out their original color and design.

MARKING DANGER spots outdoors on garage or other buildings of home or farm is also possible, if the luminescent material is used in a protected or semiprotected area, and safeguarded with a further coat of a special, clear, spray.

Outdoor application is said to last up to a year, if properly applied and protected. Indoor application is said to last indefinitely.

How to Prove the President Wrong

Rejoicers and gloaters over the walloping defeat Congress handed the Kennedy administration's proposal for a department of urban affairs are entitled to their moment of triumphant emotionalism.

But they will be well-advised to let it pass quickly and turn to some hard-headed thinking about the President's comment at his press conference immediately after the House defeated him. He said:

"We are going to have an urban department. It may not come this year, but in my opinion it will become as necessary and inevitable as the Department of Agriculture, or of Health, Education and Welfare."

Some may write this off as a defensive show of confidence. But we suspect President Kennedy spoke from a cool analysis of political facts, which he does very well.

A POLITICAL and governmental vacuum exists in municipal affairs. This includes both large and small communities.

Much of the machinery of local government in virtually every state rusted out long ago, but the demand for solution of local problems grows unceasingly and with staggering complexity.

Occasional, usually hesitant moves have been made to revamp the design of the old or to create new machinery that will work as effectively in revitalizing today's hometown as the rusted-out systems worked in building it.

With few exceptions, these moves have been rebuffed either on the local front, or in state capitols or both. Standing in the way of change has been a coalition of nostalgic sentimentalists and holdover functionaries who have too great a personal stake in the old machinery to let go.

So far the coalition has been eminently successful. Change has been forestalled. But the government vacuum grows more complete. The old systems either work badly or not at all and state legislatures refuse to revise them.

INTO THE VACUUM, inevitably, moves the federal government. State Sen. Charles W.

Whalen Jr. of Dayton recently explained how:

"While local officials may decry the growth of federal power, it is only natural that they pursue a course of least resistance.

"If, therefore, a visit to a member of the U.S. House of Representatives eventually may result in a $10 million federal grant-in-aid, why should a local administrator take the time to conduct a six months' political campaign in an effort to convince 55 to 60 per cent of his constituents that it is in their best interest to impose a tax increase upon themselves?"

Sen. Whalen could have added the probability of eventual defeat.

This is the political reality we suspect President Kennedy sees when he predicts there will be one day soon a department of urban affairs. This is what convinces the federal official "the people" are demanding such an agency.

There is time to prove President Kennedy wrong. But hard-headed thinking just as realistic as his is necessary to do it.

STATES' RIGHTERS must stop talking a federalism and use the power of their states to give local governments modern tools to serve the needs of cities.

Home rule advocates must be as ardent in using these new tools—taking the burden on themselves—as they are ardent in talking about home rule.

Annexation and incorporation revisions, new taxing authority, metropolitan federation amendments, changes in road and street fund distribution, to cite only a few, must become takeoff points for intelligent discussions toward action instead of dead issues before they are introduced in each successive legislative session.

No one should be misled into thinking that because change has been forestalled so far it will never come. The pull of the vacuum is too strong. Something is going to happen.

President Kennedy believes that "something" will be a federal department of urban affairs. Unless the people who fear it wake up and start moving, he is absolutely right.

Just a Little Under Zero

The reasons for collapse of the Kennedy administration's proposal to create a Department of Urban Affairs with a secretary of Cabinet rank are as hard to pin down as which teeth on a buzz saw cut the operator's fingers.

But the source of the blow that caused the collapse is plain.

It is the strongest political force in the United States. It has been the strongest force since Franklin D. Roosevelt overplayed his hand in the 1937 attempt to bring the Supreme Court to heel. It was the strongest force while Harry Truman was in the White House and while Dwight D. Eisenhower was there. John F. Kennedy was bruised by it his first year in office, and will be bumping into it as long as he stays in office.

It is the coalition of Republican and Democratic conservatives.

When Ohio Sen. Robert A. Taft was making his mark in the Senate he had mastered the art of leading this coalition; that was his secret. It made him stronger as a political force than President Truman, because he had the votes and Mr. Truman didn't.

If Sen. Taft had lived to play out the drama of his political relationship with President Eisenhower, who would have had to cooperate with the Taft-led coalition or admit he was its captive. The coalition would have stayed in the forefront of political action.

Instead, it deteriorated after Sen. Taft's death, but it never was disintegrated.

President Kennedy restored its vigor by confronting it with a proposition for a Department of Urban Affairs in a manner that challenged it to assert itself or risk the danger of being called politically impotent.

The President now becomes the victim of his own strategy. He has revealed his weakness to the country in an attempt to display his strength.

He has revealed what is worst of all — that the Democratic South, which makes it possible for Democratic party candidates to be elected to the presidency, makes it impossible for them to carry out their programs.

On his first test in 1962 of his influence over domestic legislation President Kennedy has scored just a little under zero.

Once Over

New York, like many cities, is having a dispute over parking privileges given to doctors in areas of traffic congestion. Henry A. Barnes, new traffic chief, has been talking to physicians about it, and following is an imaginary conversation:

Chief (approaching doctor's car): May I have a word with you.

Doctor: What's your ailment?

Chief: High blood pressure from trying to ease traffic jams, especially with respect to doctors' automobiles.

Doctor: I am just leaving hospital after being up all night. My office is full of sick people. And you want me to worry over my auto!

Chief: I appreciate your problem, but think physicians are overdoing their special parking rights. They're putting traffic on the sick list.

Doctor (impatiently): Can't we discuss this at my office?

Chief: No. It would mean I only could see you by appointment!

Doctor: Do you really think a physician up to his neck in work should be worried about a parking meter?

Chief: Traffic is on the danger list and needs fast treatment.

Doctor: Yes, but you want to operate before the diagnosis. You're telling me THIS when my office has two people with broken legs, four with sprained ankles and a man with a dislocated shoulder!

Chief: You've got to be more reasonable.

Doctor: If you were flat on your back needing a doctor would you want him to spend time hunting around for a parking place?

Chief: If my problem gets much worse I'll be flat on my back and have to make a judgment. Incidentally your wife parked your car beside a hydrant on wrong side of a one-way street while she shopped yesterday. Don't you think you should make her stop this?

Doctor: Mister, I'm only a physician, not a miracle worker! Women are women.

BRITISH MINISTER of agriculture has banned professional onion peelers from peeling at home. We didn't know there was such a thing as a "pro" onion peeler. At what point does an onion peeler leave the amateur ranks? What are the requirements, outside of speed and resistance to asphyxiation?

New York Transit Authorities has a school teaching politeness to 35,000 workers. The big problem is just how to get charm into cries of "Let me off," "Move up ahead" and "Step Lively."

Washington, D.C. gives low numbers to dogs of prominent people. Caroline Kennedy has No. 1. The idea is fine, if the dogs don't know it. We wouldn't want pooches nipping neighbors and postmen and getting away with it because of status.

Twelve cities of the U.S. now have system under which you can get weather forecast merely by phoning a special number. This is age when worrying over weather has become a national fad. Folks used to read the forecast and let it go at that, supplementing it by recourse to a few old fashioned weather maxims.

Today weather has become a TV and radio feature, with forecasters winning as much fame as Hollywood stars.

"...Sail On, Sail On, and On"

Pressure On Latins

By JOSEPH SIEVIN

The Kennedy administration plans to handpick the Latin American countries that will receive massive United States help under the Alliance for Progress.

It will come as a jolt to some of this country's southern neighbors but the administration has taken a firm decision that the Alliance for Progress is not to be a gravy train open to all comers.

The nations that will get help are those that adopt — and stay with — long range economic development programs.

The countries that will get the leavings will be those that must be given subsistence handouts to ward off Castroism but that are making few efforts to carry out progressive economic and social measures.

The Alliance for Progress envisages that the participating countries shall adopt land reform measures, redistribute incomes and enforce rigorous social reforms.

The administration intends to make full use of the United States foreign aid contribution to see to it that these steps are taken.

The United States bet is that an increasingly prosperous Latin American country will be a democratic country and will be a staunch friend and ally.

What the United States is doing is using its economic power to try to achieve political objectives including profound changes in the governmental and social structures of independent, neighboring countries.

Teodoro Moscoso, the agency for International Development official in charge of Latin American affairs, recently charged publicly that the "leader class" in Latin America has not yet recognized the need for reform.

It was bluntly clear from Mr. Moscoso's remarks that he believes there has to be a change either in the thinking of the "leader class" — or in the members.

The United States bet in Latin America is a big one and high administration officials frankly call it a risky gamble. President Kennedy has proposed a $20 billion program and has asked Congress to grant a starter appropriation of $3 billion for the next four years.

The immediate results are expected to be relatively modest — even if the Alliance for Progress works.

The administration will consider that it is doing well if the United States finds half dozen sound long-range national development programs that it can support during the next three years — and if there are two genuinely successful programs that it can point to in five years.

Officials believe that one result of pouring large sums into countries that demonstrate a capacity for rapid progress will be an increased willingness to adopt needed reforms among the foot-dragging nations.

Two of the prize nations now are believed to be Venezuela and Colombia.

Brazil is getting emergency aid to offset its latest balance of payments crisis. It is hoped that it will straighten out and take the necessary steps to begin a sound development program.

A nine-man panel of "wise men" will do the initial screening of the individual national development programs. The "wise men" are technicians, who are not supposed to represent their countries, and their non-political character is expected to make it easier for them to demand substantial changes in the plans that are submitted for their approval.

JFK's Miscalculation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Still Predicts Passage of Urban Affairs Plan

Despite the fact that the House of Representatives overwhelmingly defeated the administration's latest reorganization plan, President Kennedy predicts that the establishment of a Department of Urban Affairs, which he unsuccessfully advocated, is an inevitable development.

The President, unhappily, has not analyzed the real reason for the setback. It wasn't personal. It wasn't based, as he suggests, on opposition from rural areas to giving aid to cities. It wasn't motivated by the ill-advised interjection of a racial issue in the announcement that Robert C. Weaver, a Negro, would be appointed to head the new department.

The refusal of Congress to go along was due primarily to a deep-seated revolt against the concept of a centralized government which could conceivably convert the White House into the most powerful political machine this country has ever known.

If a department of urban affairs is needed to work with municipal governments, it is just as logical to ask for the creation of two other departments—one covering all relations between the federal government and state governments and another to embrace all relations with county governments.

Likewise it can be argued that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has too broad a scope, and that it should be separated into two departments, so that one can specialize in education.

The basic mistake is in the concept that new departments are needed for urban affairs, just because city problems have increased. Fundamentally—if the federal government is to maintain the constitutional principle of state, city and county systems, as separated from the federal system—what is desirable is not several new departments, but one department that specializes in the disbursement of federal funds and the making of contracts with the states, counties and cities.

Also, if the argument that the federal government doesn't intend to control the educational process of the states—when federal funds are furnished to them—is accepted as sincere, then all that is needed is a good business organization to see that federal funds are matched by the states and that the money is spent for the purposes set forth in the law.

While Robert Weaver might be a good man for a Cabinet post some day, it would have been much better if the President had turned to the business or financial world and had selected another Robert McNamara to head up the very department of urban affairs which he espoused. For it is not a knowledge of city politics that is so much needed as a familiarity with large business and financial transactions.

BILLIONS of dollars of the taxpayers' money are involved in all these plans for new departments. Thus, the billions that are spent by the federal government in co-operation with the states for highways are in the hands of the bureau of public roads inside the U.S. Department of Commerce.

It could logically be argued that a U.S. department of relations with the states would more properly supervise the work done by the bureau of public roads and other agencies of the federal government that deal with the states.

Counties have too long been neglected. Federal funds are being furnished to "distressed areas" through the Area Redevelopment Administration, which is in the U.S. Department of Commerce. This department today delegates some of the activities of the Area Redevelopment Administration to at least five other departments or agencies of the federal government.

The fallacy in the approach here to the problems of administrative reform and reorganization is that broad subjects—agriculture, labor and commerce—have been confused with simple tasks which are designed to make sure that federal funds are spent for the objectives stipulated in the appropriation laws passed by Congress.

THE FEDERAL government is growing as population grows. And while the fundamental structure of the government here can be improved and modernized, the basic principles laid down in the Constitution are still valid—namely, that self-rule must be maintained, as well as a reliance on the states and cities and counties to exercise full responsibility for their own systems of government.

What is needed in government today is decentralization instead of more centralization. The states and cities are not all equal in financial capacity and some federal aid becomes essential. The doctrine, however, that the federal government shall extract from taxpayers in New York State, for example, money to pay for the projects of the State of Illinois, which has the resources to finance its own needs, cannot be persuasively defended.

The President the other day in his press conference said that 80 per cent of the American people now live in cities and offered this as a justification for supervision of urban affairs by a department of the federal government.

This might readily lead to an abandonment of self rule and a concentration of political power in the executive branch of the federal government—a formula that could make the White House in the future a bigger source of political power and boss rule than a dozen Tammany Halls combined.

Limit to Black Boxes

By TRUMAN TWILL

Something finally has come out of Astronaut Glenn's great experience that's down to earth.

In the future, he says, the science fellows can take out a lot of their automated clutter that made it nearly impossible for an astronaut to squeeze inside a space capsule. Astronaut Glenn says he proved a man can do most of the things that need to be done better than the electronic marvels the geniuses loaded into the first space ships.

This can be understood by everybody worrying about being replaced by a dry cell, a solenoid button and some transistor tubes.

The time is at hand when human beings still in possession of all their buttons must get tough about button-missing science fellows hell-bent on proving they can replace men with automated "systems."

We are going to have to show these creepies that we can replace them with common sense. If their adoration at the shrine of EFFICIENCY has so unhinged them they think a mechanized world would be more desirable than a world in which human beings still make their own decisions, it's obvious they are ready for padded cells.

Astronaut Glenn says he proved that a man "is a heck of a lot better than a black box."

Note he did not say a black box was not in itself an impressive and awe-inspiring contraption. He said only that man in himself also was an impressive and awe-inspiring contraption and could do some things better than black could do them because he had intelligence and judgment.

We are told that civilization turning into a collection of black boxes — an automated society. We are bewitched by the discovery that black boxes can do a wide variety of things.

We are bemused by the idea that black boxes — when they work perfectly — are more trustworthy than men.

Astronaut Glenn suggests we had better be bemused by the idea that black boxes do not always work perfectly and that men have judgment that beats anything found in a black box.

The upshot of this down-to-earth wisdom by the only man ever proved to have orbited the earth in outer space is a kick in the bread box for black-box people.

The moral is that men like John Glenn are not ready to step aside for a black box just to please some genius who made one. The long-range moral is that black boxes exist only for the benefit of men and should be used only for that purpose. Men do not exist for the benefit of black boxes.

Cultists who think it's efficient only if it's a black box and turn up their noses at human beings have been having a high time.

Give these creepies enough leeway and they'll make a black box to take the place of being and shewing, which always has been inefficient and therefore has gotta go according to black-box cultists.

They'll have to go first.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so burned up I can hardly see to write this letter. I need your opinion — fast.

We've had a lot of snow around here this winter and it's been rough on all of us. This morning, after my husband left for work, the doorbell rang. It was the man next door. He wanted to know if I would mind pushing his car out of their driveway. He said all he needed was "a little shove."

I told him my husband had already left for work and taken our car. He replied: "You don't need a car. All I want is a little push. You can do it by hand."

I was so taken by surprise I didn't think things through. I put on my coat and galoshes and pushed his car out of the driveway. He waved his thanks and I went into the house. Then my back began to ache and I really got mad.

My husband wouldn't dream of asking a woman to push his car. What do you think of a man who would make such a request? — WET HEN.

Dear Hen: Never mind about HIM. He's a clod. But agreeing to do it qualifies you to lead off the brainless class.

Young Love

Dear Ann: I'm 15 years old and had my first date last night. The fellow is a nice guy who also is 15. This is what happened and I'd like to know what to do if it happens again.

Benny picked me up at 7 p.m. and we took a bus to the movie house. When we got to the box office he very politely said, "You may buy your ticket first." I'm I'm lucky I had money with me because I sure didn't expect to buy my own ticket. I tried not to look surprised.

After the movie he offered to treat me to a soda and I accepted. He paid for both my soda and his. I'm sure he will ask me out again. Shall I accept? — GLORIA.

Dear Gloria: If you like the boy, accept. But do him a favor and tell him that when a young man invites a lady to the movies he is supposed to buy her ticket unless it was agreed in advance that the date was to be a Dutch treat.

Unleashed Fury

Dear Ann: My husband's sister insists on bringing their untrained dog whenever she comes to spend the weekend with us, which is at least once a month.

She knows exactly how I feel about this hound because I've told her repeatedly that she is welcome any time but I don't want that dog in my house. Every time she comes over she says, "I tried to find someone who would take Ginger but it didn't work out. I hope you won't mind."

I have a new baby. That dirty dog goes into the nursery and messes on the floor. It makes me sick. My sister-in-law lets the dog sleep on her pillow and now that mattress has a dog smell I'll never get rid of.

Please, Ann, help me solve this problem. It has almost ruined my relationship with my husband's whole family, because they all like the dog.—DOG-GONED.

Dear D.G.: Stop asking and TELL her she can't bring the dog into your home again. If she appears at the door with Ginger, hand her the telephone number of the nearest kennel or a vet who will house the dog. When your sister-in-law sees that you mean business your problem will be solved.

Confidentially

TO UGLY AMERICAN: Tell him that anyone who brags about his ancestors admits his relatives are better dead than alive. This should settle his hash.

Ann Lander will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

See Doctor About Fluid Retention

Although many of us are accused of being full of "hot air," actually we are half water. Our water balance is regulated as precisely as the tides of the sea, so far for high tide, so much for low tide.

Sometimes the tide goes out a bit too far. Perhaps we didn't drink enough fluid. Perhaps we got rid of too much by way of our kidneys or digestive tract. Perhaps we lost it through our skins due to overheating or perspiration. We say we are parched. The doctor says we're dehydrated. Either way, we feel thirsty and we restore the fluid balance by drinking whatever liquids are at hand.

Sometimes we overdo high tide and get flooding of the tissues. Our fingers swell and we can't get rings off. There's pitting of the shins. Shoes become too tight and leave dents when they're removed. The face looks puffy. Bags appear under the eyes. We know we haven't over-eaten but somehow we have gained weight. Sometimes, under more serious conditions, fluid accumulates in chest cavities, the abdominal cavity, or elsewhere in the body.

WHEREVER THE accumulation occurs and whatever we call it, there's a disturbance of water balance that is much less easy to deal with than the opposite condition of dehydration.

Your doctor's first task in the investigation of fluid retention is to determine the cause. Maybe it's something reasonably obvious, like taking in too much salt or overdoses of ACTH or some related steroid product. Maybe it's an infection of the pleura with tubercle bacilli. Maybe it's a manifestation of heart failure or kidney trouble.

As you can see there's not much point in striking out blindly until the cause has been pin-pointed.

ONCE THE CAUSE is known, treatment may be highly successful. Maybe it's just a matter of cutting down on salt or fluids or of stopping a course of ACTH pills or injections. Maybe it's a matter of toning the heart with digitalis or of drawing off fluid from chest or abdomen. Maybe the needle can be avoided by effective use of drugs that increase urinary output (diuretics).

All this takes a bit of figuring, to be sure. But, with few exceptions, the results are most gratifying.

STRIKE RUMORS END

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Rumors of a possible strike have ended with ratification of a new contract by employees of the Hoover Co. of North Canton.

The company's latest proposal was accepted late Saturday by members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The new two-year contract covering 1,400 production workers provides for an immediate wage increase of five cents an hour and other benefits, making a total package of 10 cents an hour.

Permits Needed To Start Outdoor Fires In Spring

Caution with cigarettes and matches in woodland areas in the district was urged by the Ohio Division of Forestry in announcing the start of the spring forest fire season March 1.

In the period which extends through May, dead leaves and grass are readily ignited by sparks which can start destructive and dangerous fires, officials said.

Eleven townships in Columbiana County are in the organized fire protection district where permits are required for kindling any fire in areas outside incorporated towns and villages.

Permits may be obtained without cost from the following wardens:

Strahm, Roy N. Painter, Leland Hanover Township; Nellie

Faloon, Max Gard, Walter J. Bur-bick.

Center Township: Paul M. Faulk, Thomas Senanefes, Inez L. Watson.

Elkrun Township: Deane L. Price, Lawrence Baker, Olin Evans.

Franklin Township: Forest Fin-nicum, Carl N. Blake, Paul Craw-ford.

Middleton Township: Richard E. Slocum, Donald Williams, Don-ald Mahon, Robert Justice, J. V. Mackell, Veda Cope.

Madison Township: Hugh Jack, Donald Custer, Theodore Apple-by, Charles R. Heffner, Stanley Wolski, John Varsho.

Wayne Township: Charles Dav-is, R. Bruce Thorne.

Four Men Face

Murder Charges

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Newark police were planning to file first-degree murder charges against four men today in the death of Paul Cullison, 60, Newark salesman.

Arrested in the investigation Sunday were Andrew Lester Sherman, 21; Joy Robert Redman, 20; Ronald Lee Waddell, 17, and David Lee Rowland, 17, all of Newark.

Detective Chief Charles Spurgeon said Rowland struck Cullison, who fell and hit his head on the icy pavement early Saturday. One of the men then took $3.20 from Cullison, the detective said. He listed the cause of death as an apparent cerebral hemorrhage.

Deaths and Funerals

John Lease

John Lease, 67, of Teegarden, died at 3:30 p.m. Saturday in the Central Clinic Hospital of a kidney ailment following an illness of several weeks.

Born at Teegarden Jan. 30, 1895, he was the son of Eugene Clarence and Anna Stockwell Lease. He was a retired coal miner and had lived in the area all his life. He was a member of Highland Christian Church.

Survivors are three brothers, William, Clarence and Logan, all of RD 4, Lisbon four sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Sommers of Salem, Mrs. Myrtle McLaughlin of Leetonia; Mrs. Harry McCartney of RD 2, Salem, and Miss Mary Lease of the home. One sister preceded him in death.

Services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Stark Memorial, with Rev. Harold Deitch, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiating. Burial will be in Highland Christian Church Cemetery.

Friends may call at the memorial this evening.

Algeria

from outlying bases, but still the killings went on in the crowded streets of Algiers.

Six Moslems were slain on the Rue Michelet. Police arrested a European and said he admitted one of the attacks.

Four Moslem dead and one wounded were sprawled over a 100-yard stretch of sidewalk opposite the University of Algiers.

An Algerian Moslem with a pointed white beard and dressed in a flowing robe lay dead across the street from the U.S. Information Service library. A Moslem youth, badly wounded, huddled by his side. A young man who had passed just before the attack said they had been sitting on the sidewalk watching passersby when they were shot.

Over the weekend at least 56 persons were killed in what seemed to be indiscriminate attacks by European and Moslem terrorists. The Saturday toll was 30, and 26 were reported killed Sunday.

Some 800 Moslem students at the University of Algiers went on strike, protesting that police protection against the secret army terrorists was not adequate. Mail delivery men also continued a strike for more protection which they demanded after seven postmen on their rounds were shot last week.

Informed sources said Algerian leaders attending the secret conference of the National Council in Tripoli probably would hold up announcement of their acceptance of peace terms until rebel Premier Ben Youssef Ben Khedda returns to Tunis, permanent headquarters of his National Liberation Front—FLN.

The French Cabinet already has approved the agreement to end the 7½-year war.

The 54 members of the rebel parliament have been holding secret day and night sessions since their arrival in Tripoli last Thursday. As Sunday night's session ended, Ferhat Abbas, former rebel premier and a leader of the FLN, hinted agreement was near.

In one of their heaviest attacks so far, commandos of the Secret Army Organization fired bazooka rockets into a French military police barracks Sunday night at Maison Carree, a suburb of Algiers, setting gasoline storage tanks ablaze.

Early reports said at least 10 persons were killed or wounded in the attack.

Fire engines summoned to fight the raging fires were blocked by machine gun fire for nearly an hour. The French army rushed six heavy tanks and a score of other armored vehicles into the area.

Firemen finally quelled the blaze which had spread to an ammunition dump, touching off many cartridges. The glow of the fire was visible in Algiers. The exploding bullets could be heard in the city.

The bazooka attack was the third assault on the Maison Carree barracks in the past two weeks. It was believed the recent arrival there of an anti-terrorist squad prompted the latest attack. The big camp, ringed with rolls of barbed wire, also houses several thousand families of military policemen.

Official sources counted 28 persons killed and 51 wounded in 48 scattered weekend terrorist attacks up to midnight Sunday.

Three area truck drivers were fined for overloading by Mayor Dean E. Cramer following their arrest at the city weigh station on W. State St. Sunday by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

Fined were Edward D. Dunn, 40, of RD 5, Salem, $6; Harold W. Barnes, 39, of RD 2, Lisbon, $25; and John R. Mrugala, 22, of RD 3, Salem, $25.

SURPRISE, PEOPLE!

By popular demand (my superiors asked me) I have taken time out from standing in line to get tickets to the Tournament games to dash off a few lines on Salem and the Tourney trail. (no matter how short, or how long the trail is).

Salem had a small turnout at their opening game with the Wilson Presidents (slightly over 2,000 fans) and for the most part, they conducted themselves fairly well. These fans watched from the edge of their seats (the lucky ones had seats) as a somewhat rattled Salem Quintet squeaked by a hustling Wilson 5. They caused turnovers and stole the ball a few times to keep right in there right up to the final buzzer. In fact according to some of the reports I've read and heard, Salem lost everything but the ball game.

Woodrow Wilson fans seemed to be a little on edge too. At one point of the game I heard a fan say quite loudly, as Thorne made another trip to the foul line "Aw, come on, miss ONE will ya!". And it goes without saying, the Quakers did do a fine job at that foul line. Keep it up, Men!

The man to man offense did its little bit to rattle another fan.

This rather quiet fellow watched the entire game, quietly, but from time to time as the Quakers worked the ball in toward the bucket for an easy lay up, he would mutter "There he is again, right under the basket!"

At any rate, this game is over, and the Quakers are the winners, so let's get on to Tuesday's game.

Salem's play will have to be far superior to that displayed Thursday night if they are to avoid being "Scratched" by the Wildcats. This week I'm afraid, the Hometown boys are considered (in some places at least) Underdogs Struthers is big, fast, and experienced. . . And they remember last year. (At least this time it won't be on their home floor). These boys have won 18 games this season and lost none. Some say "sure, but who have they played?" No matter, a "no loss" record is hard to come by regardless of the schedule. And they are going to give Salem all of the Basketball they can handle. The Quakers are going to have to give it everything they've got if they want to come anywhere near winning (And I, for one, would like to be a darn sight closer than near).

Well, it's half past Saturday, and if the crowd is half as big as it is expected to be this week, I think I'll go get back in line. With a little bit of luck, and a lot of effort on the part of Salem's fine basketekers, I may be able to come back next week.

LET'S GO, QUAKERS! (I've only been to Columbus once).

Crestview Edges United 42-40 To Take County Crown

Win Advances Rebels Into Canton Sectional

Coach Bruce Weber's Crestview Rebels copped the Columbiana County Class A basketball championship in the three-team play-offs with a 42-40 victory over defending champion United High in the Beaver Local High gym Saturday night.

The win by Crestview advances it to this week's Canton Class A Sectional Tournament, along with Columbiana and Leetonia, two of the county's exempted schools. A Stark County champion will round out the field in the tourney.

Beatty Easily Wins AAU Mile

Won't Try for New Marks This Winter

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Jim Beatty, the world's first indoor sub-four-minute miler, is inclined to let his 3:58.9 record stand for another year and look ahead to the outdoor season and an assault on Peter Snell's 3:54.4 world mark.

The little Los Angeles Track Club star still has two races remaining on his indoor schedule, the Bankers Mile in the Chicago Daily News Relays on March 9 and the 1,000 or the mile in the Milwaukee Journal meet on March 10.

"I hope to run fast races," he said Sunday before heading for a visit to his in-laws in Gastonia, N.C., "but right now I'm inclined not to go after any more records this winter. We have a lot of work to do in preparation for the outdoor season."

Beatty won the National AAU Mile Saturday night in 4:00.2 in Madison Square Garden. The week before he had clocked 4:00.9 in the New York Athletic Club meet. He had no competition in the AAU mile. Cary Wiesiger of the Quantico Marines, his closest pursuer, was 25 yards back in 4:04.6.

Beatty's coach, Mihaly (Mike) Igloi, made no secret of his plans. "I have scheduled Jim to lower the mile record to 3:54 before the end of the year (meaning the end of the summer)," he said.

Igloi also has his plans laid out two years ahead, except that he's not sure whether Beatty will run the 1,500 meters or the 5,000 meters in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo.

Charlie Mays, a 21-year-old Maryland State junior, scored the biggest upset of the meet when he won the broad jump, beating Ralph Boston, the world kingpin with a jump of 24-10 1/2.

John Thomas of Boston University cleared seven feet for the first time this winter and showed himself to be getting back in shape. Gary Gubner of New York University failed in his 65-foot bid, but his 62-10 was more than enough to win the shotput.

Springfield Local Moves Into Sectional

Springfield Local emerged from the Mahoning County Class A Tournament, along with champion Greenford, to enter the Warren Sectional this week after nipping Lowellville 54-52 to cop the consolation bracket runner-up spot in the Jackson-Milton High gym Saturday night.

The Tigers (15-7) have been paired with Braceville (15-7) and Greenford (15-6) will meet Lakeview (19-4) Thursday night, it was revealed in drawings for Sectional play conducted in Warren Sunday afternoon.

Springfield's senior Ted Slagle dumped in two foul shots in the final 30 seconds to provide the Tigers with the win. The winners controlled the first half with quarter counts of 18-10 and 34-29, but Lowellville caught fire in the nip-and-tuck second half.

Coach Leigh Klingensmith's Tigers held on 43-41 after three stanzas, with Slagle's two points the difference in the final canto.

Slagle finished with 14 points to lead the winners, while teammates Jim Allen and Dick McPherson each dumped in 10 tallies. The Rockets' Bob Pratt and Gerald Benson came out of the fray with 14 markers apiece, while Gil Lio contributed 10.

In the Class A grade school finals, Lowellville downed Springfield Local 24-21 for the title.

SPRINGFIELD LOCAL—54
Allen 3-4-10; Slagle 4-6-14; Wolf 0-1-1; McPherson 1-8-10; Sonecker 2-5-9; Brungard 4-0-8; Rauch 1-0-2. Totals 15-24-54.

play with a 17-2 mark, while United ended its season with a 11-9 record over-all.

The Rebels were forced to hold off a determined United rally in the final period to grab the championship. Coach Weber's charges held comfortable leads at every quarter stop, 17-4, 27-17 and 34-26, but ran into trouble in the last stanza. Coach Larry Joseph's Golden Eagles poured through 14 points in the canto to only eight by the winners.

Crestview won it from the foul stripe as it canned 16 shots, while United was getting 12. United took field goal honors with 14, while the Rebels meshed 13.

Columbiana County champion Crestview will meet Stark County titlist Lake and Tri-County League foes Columbiana and Leetonia will tangle in the opening round of the Canton Class A Sectional tournament at the Canton Fieldhouse Friday night.

Pairings in the four-team tourney were made in Canton Sunday afternoon. Winners of Friday night's games will meet Saturday night for the berth in the District tourney.

Columbiana (15-3) will be seeking revenge over Leetonia (8-16), last year's Sectional champion. The Clippers were upset handily in 1961, to enable the Bears to go on to the District playoffs.

Lake (10-9) is this year's Stark County champ after it dumped Northwest 60-45 Saturday night. Crestview (17-2) advanced after nipping United 42-40 for the Columbiana County title.

The Canton Sectional lineup is as follows:

Friday
1. Crestview vs Lake, 7 p.m.
2. Leetonia vs Columbiana, 8:30 p.m.

Saturday
3. Winner game 1 vs winner game 2, 8 p.m. (winner to Canton District)

a 6-7 junior center, and senior Raymond Brown sparked Crestview with 12 points apiece. United's senior guard John Hanna featured for the losers with 17 markers.

United had won the right to meet Crestview in the championship tilt of the tourney after it beat the other entry, Salineville, 71-46 Wednesday night. Crestview was awarded the tourney bye, since it had the best record of the three clubs.

In the Reserve tourney final Saturday night, United's Jayvees won over Salineville 67-44 for the county title.

Gentile, Hunt Baseball Practice Casualties

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Busiest man around baseball's spring camps during the early stages when rigid muscles refuse to respond is the trainer—and Baltimore's medical cure-all to day went after slugging Oriole first baseman Jim Gentile with everything in his arsenal.

Gentile, who provided the power for the Orioles last season as he hit .302, rapped 46 homers and drove in 141 runs, reported early at his own request and began spraying well-hit drives all over the field.

When Gentile assessed his efforts over the weekend, he found he had badly bruised a batch of baseballs—and hadn't neglected himself. Trainer Billy Weidner declared Gentile a member of the club's linament brigade with a jammed right thumb, infected ingrown toenail and three open blisters on each hand.

Elsewhere, it was a similar story. In the most serious accidents, outfielder Ken Hunt of the Los Angeles Angels was struck on the left elbow by a pitch from Johnny James and rookie hurler Roy Heiser of the Washington Senators twisted his knee and will be forced to miss several work-outs.

Bruised pride also was a problem over the weekend as the Detroit Tigers slugging outfielder, Rocky Colavito, joined home run

Cincinnati Wraps Up Share Of Missouri Valley Title

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

One year ago Bradley went up against the St. Louis Billikens needing a victory to tie Cincinnati for the Missouri Valley basketball title and force a playoff for the conference's berth in the NCAA tournament.

St. Louis upset the Braves, putting Cincinnati in the NCAA. The Bearcats went all the way to the national championship.

History is repeating itself. Cincinnati wrapped up at least a share of its fifth successive Missouri Valley title Saturday night by ripping Wichita 84-63 and finishing with a 10-2 conference record.

Bradley can catch the Bearcats if it wins its final game—at St. Louis this Saturday.

If that happens, the two nationally ranked rivals will have their playoff on a neutral floor, with the NCAA spot as the prize.

The Missouri Valley hassle is only one of many tangled races among the 16 conferences which will send teams to the NCAA classic, which opens March 12 with first-round competition.

Ohio State's powerful Buckeyes, driving toward their third straight Big Ten crown, swamped Illinois Saturday for a perfect 21-0 record. Wisconsin maintained its mathematical chance for the title —the surprise of the basketball year if the Badgers should pull it off—by trimming Northwestern 65-64. Tonight, Ohio State is at Iowa and the Badgers are at home to Minnesota. On Saturday they'll meet head-on at Wisconsin.

Yale has the big edge in the Ivy League, two games up on Penn and Cornell with all three winding up the season with two games this weekend—including Penn at Cornell Friday. UCLA has a three-game edge on Southern California and Stanford in the Big Five, with three games left for the three contenders. Pepperdine is the frontrunner in the West Coast Athletic Conference and has a good chance at taking it all Saturday night against second-place St. Mary's.

Utah, on NCAA probation and ineligible for postseason play, kept in front in the Skyline by outscoring Brigham Young 106-101 Saturday night as Billy McGill went on a 60-point spree. Utah State and Colorado State University, the two contenders for the NCAA berth, also won and stayed deadlocked for second behind the Utes. Utah could knock CSU out of the running when they tangle at Salt Lake City Thursday night.

Now for the battles—Colorado and Kansas State are producing the fireworks in the Big Eight, with the Buffaloes 10-0 and the Wildcats 9-1 and a showdown at K-State Saturday. Each has two games afterwards.

Kentucky (10-1) at Auburn (10-2) tonight should be the key in the Southeastern, even though they are running 2-3 behind defending conference champion Mississippi State (11-1). Mississippi State has announced it would not be interested in an NCAA bid because of the state's custom against racially integrated athletics.

The Southwest Conference, as usual, is a scramble with Texas Tech and Southern Methodist tied at the top (9-3) and Texas A&M at 8-4. The Aggies are at Tech Tuesday night while SMU plays last-place Baylor, and they'll each have one game later.

Lafayette is ahead in the Middle Atlantic at 9-1 with Temple and St. Joseph's (Pa.) its chief rivals at 7-1. Since Lafayette plays 12 league games to nine for the other two clubs, a playoff looms as a good possibility. Massachusetts tops the Yankee standings at 7-2 and finishes at home against New Hampshire Saturday, while Rhode Island is 6-2 with games against Maine Thursday and Connecticut Saturday.

The two remaining NCAA assignments will go the winners of the annual Atlantic Coast and Southern Conference tourneys, set for this Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Wake Forest, Duke and North Carolina State are regarded the top numbers in the ACC playoffs, and perennial champion West Virginia is favored in the Southern tourney.

Coach Bob Martin's local 8th graders also had an easy time with St. Paul's as they took a 11-6 first period margin and then built it up to 22-13 at halftime and 35-20 after three stanzas.

Rick Klepper and Tod Chappell were the big guns for the winners with 15 and 10 points respectively. John Harary of St. Paul's took scoring honors in the game with 17 tallies.

St. Paul's had advanced into the finals with the Salem 8th grade squad after Springfield Local was unable to play in the finals Saturday night.

Coaches in the 7th grade tourney chose the following players to make up the all-tournament team: John Stanley, Sarber Tinsley, Joe Wilson and Kenny Davalle of Knox; Larry Scragg and Jim Parker of East Palestine; Guy Tepsic and Ron Ellis of Boardman; Jack Myler of Beaver Local, and Rick Hackett of Salem 'A'.

The 8th grade all-tournament team picked by coaches is as follows:

Jim Lantz, Rich Klepper, Chuck Alexander and Tod Chappell of Salem; Joe Judge, John Harary and Buzz Fisher of St. Paul's; Jim Haecock of Knox; Arnold McLanglin of Beaver Local, and Dave Conrad of Leetonia.

It was learned that Maris, who hammered 61 homers in 1961, and the Yankees are $8,000 apart in their salary negotiations. Maris has reduced his asking price to $70,000 and the Yanks have come up $2,000 on their original offer.

Four satisfied signers were reported. Catcher Charlie Lau of Baltimore, pitcher Paul Foytack of Detroit, outfielder Pete Jernigan of Boston and outfielder Richie Ashburn of the New York Mets.

The Philadelphia Phils picked up catcher Sammy White, a free agent formerly with the Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee Braves, but lost third baseman Andy Carey, who notified the club he is retiring.

Infielder Daryl Spencer, outfielder Duke Snider and pitcher Ed Roebuck, all on the injured list part of the 1961 campaign, were in sharp form at the Los Angeles Dodgers workout.

Quakers Tackle Unbeaten Struthers In 2nd Round

By LYNN BROWNE
News Sports Writer

The Salem Quakers resume their Class AA tourney activities Tuesday night at Youngstown's South High Field House when they battle the formidable Struthers Wildcats at 7:15.

Struthers will be making its tournament debut and will pit a perfect season record of 18-0 against the Quakers' 17-2 mark. Struthers, one of the four seeded teams in the sectionals, chose an opening round bye.

Salem was the last team to beat the Wildcats. The Quakers edged Struthers on the Wildcats' home floor, 53-53, in the sectional finals March 3 of last year. Struthers went into that fray with a 17-3 record while the locals sported a 15-4 mark.

Bill Beery, a sophomore at that time, led the Quakers' attack. He potted 13 floor shots and two charity tosses for 28 tallies. Don Davidson, Salem's contribution to the all-state squad, was held to eight counters.

Struthers' Rich Cappola and John Myers were the big guns for the Wildcats. Myers hooped 14 points while teammate Cappola accounted for eight.

Cappola at 6-3 and Myers at 6-5 are both included in Coach George Kerlek's tentative starting lineup for Tuesday's tilt. Cappola will play a guard spot while Myers is listed at forward. Both are seniors.

Rounding out the starting quintet — that averages a tall 6-3 — will be Tony Matlak, a 6-2 senior forward, 6-1 Rich Huzicko at guard and 6-5 center Joe Smolko.

There has been speculation by many fans that since the Wildcats will be playing their first tourney contest it could prove a negative factor for them, and because Salem had a chance to get over the tourney jitters against Wilson (and it was apparent they were present), the otherwise even odds may swing in favor of the Quakers.

One thing, however, is apparent to all who saw the Salem-Wilson game — the Quakers will have to play a better brand of ball to beat the Wildcats.

They won't be able to work for the man - underneath - by himself shot throughout the game, as they did against the Presidents. The Quakers are going to have to

Lisbon Raps Beavers; Advances In Sectional

Lisbon High School's varsity cage team rolled into the second round of the Youngstown Class AA Sectional basketball tournament with an easy 68-53 win over Beaver Local Saturday night in South Field House.

The victory puts the Blue Devils' over-all mark at 9-10 and sends them into the second round of play against tough Liberty (19-1) Thursday night at 8:30 p.m. The loss ended the Beavers' season with a 5-14 record.

Lisbon moved to an early 15-8 first period lead and then padded its margin to 36-23 at halftime and 46-34 after three quarters of play.

Four Blue Devils hit in double figures, with top scorer Craig Pannier, a 6-0 junior, leading the attack with 21 points. Teammates David Klug meshed 13 tallies and Larry McPherson and Dave Rose 11 apiece.

Senior forward John Baker and junior forward George Gaydos featured for the Beavers with 15 and 13 points respectively.

In tackling Liberty Thursday night, Coach Gary Pike's charges will be taking on one of the pre-tournament favorites. The tall and talented Leopards blasted Newton Falls 69-56 in the game just prior to the Lisbon - Beaver Local clash to advance to the second round.

The winner of the tilt Thursday will be pitted against the Boardman-Levittsburg winner Saturday night, with this winner advancing to the District playoffs.

Levittsburg advanced to meet Boardman after blasting Youngstown North 52-34 in the opener Saturday night. Boardman had drawn a bye in the first round.

In the Struthers Sectional Saturday night, Youngstown Rayen upset Warren Harding 58-47. Youngstown South blasted Campbell 70-35 and Youngstown Ursu-sharpen their outside shooting eye. But Coach John Cabas, after the Wilson game, promised 'we'll get the outside shots' against Struthers.

Coach Cabas feels the Quakers are ready for the clash with the Wildcats. "We're poised, ready and confident," he said. For the first time in a long time we're the underdog, and we certainly like the role."

Bucks To Tangle With Iowa Tonight

Ohio State Blasts Illinois; Miami Loses to Kent State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State can tie for—or win outright—its third straight Big Ten basketball championship tonight.

The scintillating Bucks carry an impressive record against Iowa on the foreign court tonight. A win could clinch a tie for the laurels. If Wisconsin loses to Minnesota tonight, the Bucks would come home with the pennant pegged to the mast.

Ohio State headed for the tall corn country the unanimous choice as the nation's best collegiate team, with a 21-game winning streak, 11 in the Big Ten for the campaign, and an unbroken string of 26 in the rugged loop. Saturday's 102-79 win over Illinois was the 33rd straight at home.

Big Jerry Lucas, who incurred four personal fouls, sat out about the 15 minutes of Saturday's televised tilt and was held to 13 points. But his mates took up the slack and poured through the porous Illinois defense for their second century score of the season.

Six of the Bucks were in double figures, Capt. John Havlicek packing the pack with 19.

Cincinnati, with a share of the Missouri Valley title wrapped up after Saturday's 84-63 win over Wichita, must await next Saturday's Bradley-St. Louis game to see if a post-season fray with the Peoria Braves is necessary to break the deadlock. If Bradley wins, the Braves and Bearcats must meet on a neutral floor to decide the NCAA representative. Cincinnati won its last year and copped the national crown in an overtime tilt with Ohio State.

The other conferences in which Ohio teams are involved are all settled. Bowling Green is the Mid-American king and NCAA entry, Ohio Wesleyan is boss in the Ohio Conference—but has been eliminated by Muskingum in the post-season tourney which decides the smaller college NCAA representative. Ashland turned back Ohio Northern 60-56 Saturday to take the Mid-Ohio laurels with 11-1, and Bethany is king of the Presidents' loop.

Dayton, an entry in the NIT, warmed up at Louisville Saturday with a 65-59 win. But Kent State came up with the week's big one—a 105-87 win over Miami on the Redskin floor to break a 16-game losing streak.

Fourteen of the state's 41 colleges have completed the campaign, and except for tournament chores all but eight others wind up this week.

Heavy attention centers on the Ohio Conference tournament, won the last two years by Wittenberg. Only 4 of the 15 teams are still in.

Wininger Nips Rosburg In New Orleans Open

By BEN THOMAS
NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"I almost gave it away a couple of times," quipped handsome, gray-haired Bo Wininger after he sank a four-foot putt for a birdie on No. 18 to win his first golf tour victory in nearly six years.

Wininger, 39, who plays only occasionally since he quit the grueling PGA circuit 30 months ago to work as a public relations man for a Texas oil well supply firm, shot a four-under-par 68

Sunday for a 281 total to win the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Open by two strokes.

He fashioned his 68 with a 33-35 and withstood pressure from pudgy Bob Rosburg, the onetime PGA titlist from Portland, Ore., who finished second with a 69 and 283 total.

Doug Sanders, the 29-year-old short-swinging pro who won here last year, finished third with a 285. Sanders, a Cedarhurst, N.Y., native who plays out of Ojai, Calif., carded a 71 for the final round.

Down Finsterwald of Athens, Ohio, finished in a 10th place tie with six others with a 291 total after shooting a final round 74. His earnings were $851.43.

Former national champion Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, carded a final day 71 for a 292 total and $850.

The easy-going Wininger has had near-misses since he won the Kansas City Open in 1956, with a tendency to run into a bad round frequently.

His $4,300 paycheck for first place in the New Orleans tourney was nearly double the $2,317.50 he won in nine PGA tourneys last year.

It boosted his earnings this year to $5,638.33 and put him in 11th place on the PGA's official money list. He played in four of the seven earlier events this year and plans to leave the tour after this week's $20,000 Baton Rouge Open which starts Thursday.

NCAA Not Impressed by AAU Offer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Amateur Athletic Union, in a struggle with the National Collegiate Athletic Association over administration of athletics, has offered the NCAA equal representation on three of its key international sports committees.

In a special executive session Sunday, the AAU offered the NCAA equal representation on its committees governing track and field, basketball and gymnastics. These are the three sports in which the NCAA has threatened to set up separate federations.

The AAU also offered the NCAA partial representation on 10 other committees in an effort to forestall a threatened walkout by that group. AAU officials said they will go ahead with the new plan even if the NCAA refuses to accept it.

The NCAA wasn't overly impressed by the offer. Walter Byers, the NCAA executive director, said in Kansas City his organization will go ahead with plans for new federations to govern the three sports.

"The AAU plan is substantially the same as that outlined at our meeting in Chicago, Feb. 11-12," Byers said. "It doesn't embody the new administrative principles that we believe are vital for reorganization of amateur sports administration."

The controversy revolves around the accreditation of athletes for such things as the Olympics, over which the AAU has had control for years. The NCAA complaint has been that it does not have adequate representation in picking such teams.

Pairings Set In Warren 'A' Sectional

Coach Jerry Suess' Greenford Bobcats (15-6) will be taking on Lakeview (19-4) at 7:30 p. m. Thursday night in the first round of play in the seven-team Warren Class A Sectional Basketball Tourney in the Warren Harding High gym.

In drawings held Sunday afternoon in Warren, other pairings made for the opening round were: Badger (17-5) vs Warren St. Mary's (2-17) and Springfield Local (15-7) vs Braceville (15-7).

Windham (16-2) drew a bye in the first round and will meet the winner of the Badger-St. Mary's game Saturday to determine one of the two teams to advance to the Canton District.

The winner of the Greenford-Lakeview tilt will take on the Springfield Local-Braceville winner, also Saturday night, with the winner also heading into the Canton District playoffs.

Badger, Lakeview and Braceville all emerged from the TIA playoffs in Warren, Greenford and Springfield Local from the Mahoning County tourney, Windham from the Portage County playoffs and Warren St. Mary's an at-large entry from the Warren parochial schools.

The Warren Sectional pairings are as follows:

Thursday
1. Badger vs Warren St. Mary's, 6:30 p.m.
2. Greenford vs Lakeview, 7:45 p.m.
3. Springfield Local vs Braceville, 9 p.m.

Saturday
4. Windham vs winner game 1, 7:30 p.m. (winner to District)
5. Winner game 2 vs winner game 3, 9 p.m. (winner to District)

AFL Founder To Testify In Trust Suit

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lamar Hunt, one of the founders of the American Football League, was expected to be called as the first witness today in the AFL's $10 million antitrust suit against the National Football League.

The trial, expected to last from four to 10 weeks, will be heard without a jury.

Hunt owns the Dallas Texans, who have been operating in competition with the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL for the past two seasons. The AFL contends the NFL moved deliberately into Dallas in 1960, knowing that the city could not support two teams.

The NFL was accused of trying to get players to break contracts with the AFL, attempting to show the new league would not honor commitments, and with threatening to blacklist the AFL's prospective players.

An affidavit filed with the court said the losses of the eight AFL teams in 1960 ranged from $245,311 in Buffalo to $830,422 in Los Angeles. The Los Angeles franchise since has been shifted to San Diego.

LITTLE LIZ

Only Two Types

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Women sure are a lot of trouble to themselves—and anyone else who has the misfortune to get caught up in their turmoil.

There are only two types of ladies a man sits next to on airplanes:

(1) Those mad at their son-in-law, who insist on telling you why.

(2) Squirmlers.

The other day I boarded a plane and the stewardess flagged me to a seat next to a strange lady.

She had the look of a woman who had been ordering the same man around for years. I could tell at a glance she was a squirm.

All I wanted to do was to nap until we reached our destination. But instinctively I realized I was in for trouble.

Sure enough. As soon as I closed my eyes, the lady said: "This airplane is too cold. I feel a draft in here."

Automatically I reached up and began to turn off the air vent. "You're turning it the wrong way," the lady said positively. I kept on turning the gadget in the same direction. The flow of air stopped.

The lady gave me a 300-kilo-watt glare. I had done the unpardonable thing. I had proved her wrong.

I closed my eyes again as the plane started down the runway and rose into the sky.

"He took off too fast," said the lady.

"Probably a beginner," I mumbled, and closed my eyes.

"My, it's getting warm in here," said the lady.

I reached for the air vent.

"You're turning it the wrong way," she said. I kept on turning it in the same direction. Cool air rushed out.

The lady gave me a 600-kilo-watt glare. I had proved her wrong twice in 10 minutes. I realized I had made a lifelong enemy.

I closed my eyes.

"I hate to bother you, but could you reach me a pillow?" I reached for a pillow, and closed my eyes. Three minutes later she said, "Would you mind putting the pillow back now?"

Well, so it went. Every time I closed my eyes the lady wanted something else—a magazine, a drink of water, et cetera, et cetera and et cetera some more.

WHIRLING PATROL — U. S. Air Force helicopters, carrying Vietnamese troops, hover over countryside in South Viet Nam. The airlift was a mission aimed at cleaning out Communist guerrillas from village of Hung My in southern part of country.

When the meal came, the lady couldn't get the paper off her dab of jelly. I got it off all right—and got the jelly all over my hand. Gallantly, I offered her my jelly.

"Is it the same flavor?" she demanded suspiciously. I assured her the airline played no favorites. I closed my eyes.

"I've been visiting my daughter," said the lady, "and—" She went into a 45-minute denunciation of her son-in-law.

I closed my eyes.

"Par'n' me," said the lady, climbing over me to go the rest room. On the way one of her spiked heels raked my right shinbone. On the way back she wounded the left shinbone.

Then she dropped her handbag twice and I picked it up both times. She opened her compact and spilled powder on my suit. She opened a bottle of perfume, put a drop behind each of her ears, spilled the rest of the bottle on me.

Desperately, I closed my eyes—but we were coming in for a landing.

She tromped on both my shinbones getting out. As we left the plane she was met by her husband.

"Did you have to wear that suit?" she asked. "You know I don't like it."

"Have a nice trip, honey?" replied her husband.

"Terrible," I heard her say. "I tried to get a nap, but the man sitting next to me jabbered all the way."

If her husband had been half my size, I would have rushed up and hit the lady in the nose right there. Unfortunately, her husband was more than half my size, so I didn't.

I just went home and tried to explain to my wife why I smelled of perfume, and she said, "a likely story—what really happened?"

TAVERN BURNS

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Little Audrey's Tavern in Boston Heights was burned out Sunday in a five-hour blaze of unknown origin. Damage to the home and business owned by Mr. and Mrs. James Rothery was estimated at $25,000.

QUESTIONING CONTINUES

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police planned more questioning today for Charles Edward Delph, 32, in the butcher-knife slaying of his wife, Veralyn, 33.

Detectives said Delph surrendered Sunday shortly after his wife's body was found in their apartment near downtown Cincinnati. No charge was filed immediately.

Girl Scout News

Intermediate Troop 51

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 51 and its leaders, Mrs. Ralph Fratila and Mrs. Harold Hutcherson, are completing plans to go winter camping at Camp Merrydale in the near future.

Recently 18 members of the troop and their leaders, accompanied by Miss Pat Hutcherson and Miss Barbara Lozier, held a swimming party at the Alliance YMCA.

They were accompanied by Troop 52 and its leaders, Miss Barbara Shepard and Mrs. Wendell Beck.

Troop 8 Elects

The following officers were elected recently by members of Girl Scout Troop 8: President, Irene Robinson; secretary, Linda Zeeler, treasurer, Nancy Older; pre-senior planning board representatives, Bevely Callahan and Sibina May, and Juliette Low representatives, Judy Coppock and Carol Rinard.

The girls will stuff envelopes for civic clubs for their community service project.

Mrs. Bruce Wilson and Mrs. Donald Beeler are troop leaders.

TO SPEAK AT OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Vernon R. Alden, the new president of Ohio University in Athens, will deliver the commencement address at the winter quarter graduation exercises at Ohio State University March 16.

Retarded Children's Council To Convene

Columbiana Council for Retarded Children will meet Tuesday evening at 8 at the Elkton School, with William Hiscow of Lisbon, president, in charge of the meeting.

Anyone interested in the Retarded Children program may attend the meeting.

Civil Defense Meetings Scheduled for Women

The local Civil Defense organization has scheduled a series of meetings for women on "Home Preparedness in Civil Defense."

The seven meetings will be held in the City Hall Council chambers Monday evenings at 7:30 starting March 12.

Women who are interested are to contact Mrs. Walter Worman of 850 E. Pershing St. by Saturday.

BUZZARD HOMECOMING

MEDINA, Ohio (AP)—Hinckley Twp. is buzzing with excitement these days in preparation for the annual buzzard homecoming celebration.

Some 75 turkey buzzards are expected to complete their annual flight from Southern Texas to Whipples Ledges between March 15 and 18. Some 50,000 are expected to watch the buzzards and eat sausage and pancakes made by township residents.

CITIES GROUPED

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Eleven Ohio cities have been grouped into a new district of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

The district, called a stake, is headed by James L. Mortensen of Columbus and embraces church members in Columbus, Marion, Mansfield, Newark, Springfield, Zanesville, Cambridge, Lancaster, Circleville, Jackson and Portsmouth.
